MEMORANDUM FOR: Assistant for Public Affairs

SUBJECT : Publicity on CIA Soviet Oil Estimates

REFERENCE : DD/OER Memorandum, dated 14 June 1977,
Proposed Press Statement on Energy
Study

1. In the referenced memorandum to you from [ ] we described the various coming opportunities for positive publicity on CIA estimates of Soviet oil. I have since obtained additional information on the meeting at Commerce scheduled for 29 June 1977 which indicates that this should be a golden opportunity to spell out and publicize our views and the basis for them. The occasion will be a meeting of Commerce's Advisory Committee on East-West Trade (see the Attachment). I have been advised that Commerce wants to use the meeting primarily to thoroughly air the CIA forecasts of Soviet oil production, demand, and trade. They expect to invite members of the responsible press, such as Business Week and the Wall Street Journal. Members of the embassies of Communist countries normally also attend these meetings.

2. We have agreed to give a presentation and also plan to make available at the meeting a detailed unclassified study of major aspects of the Soviet oil problem (reserves, production, and technology) and an unclassified version of the recent paper on Chinese oil. In view of the fact that the DCI's Joint Economic Committee testimony would not have been released in unclassified form by that time, we would deal with the implications of the oil problem for the Soviet economy only in general terms.

STAT

3. We feel certain that this meeting will result in a great deal of publicity, and we hope that it will help to dispel some of the misimpressions that have been fostered by uninformed press coverage.

MAURICE C. ERNST
Director
Economic Research

Dear Admiral Turner:

Thank you for your letter of 18th April and enclosed information concerning the CIA study report on "The Energy Situation: Outlook to 1985."

I am very concerned regarding the implications for our nation's future and security of the indications and conclusions of this report.

Regardless of inherent error factors in making projections such as this, it is readily apparent that our world is rapidly diminishing very finite known sources of petroleum and remedial programs must be implemented if our nation is to minimize the negative affects of inevitable shortages and not be at a possibly disastrous energy disadvantage in the world.

I appreciate your declassifying this valuable information and sharing it with me.

With personal regards,

Sincerely,

WASHINGTON

APRIL 29, 1977.

In each period of our history, the nation has responded to challenges which have demanded the best in all of us.

This is one of those times.

Our energy crisis is an invisible crisis, which grows steadily worse—even when it is not in the news. It has taken decades to develop, as our demand for energy has grown much faster than our supply. It will take decades to solve. But we still have time to find answers in a planned, orderly way—if we define the changes we must make and if we begin now.

This report explains why we have to act, and gives you the details of our Plan. The Plan is complicated. I am sure that many people will find some feature of it they will dislike along with features they can support. But it is a carefully balanced Plan, which depends for its effectiveness on all of its major parts.

Above all it is fair. Our guiding principle, as we developed the Plan, was that none of our people should be asked to bear an unfair burden, and none should reap an unfair advantage. There will be sacrifices, but they will be gradual, reasonable—and fair.

The changes the Plan recommends will mean a new direction in American life. In some cases heading in that direction may seem inconvenient. But I have faith that meeting this challenge will make our lives more satisfying.

We can rediscover the ingenuity and the efficiency which have made our nation prosper, rather than deepening our dependence on insecure imports and increasingly expensive conventional energy supplies. We can rediscover small-scale, more creative ways of satisfying our needs. If we are successful, we can protect jobs, the environment, and the basic American standard of living, not only for ourselves but also for our children and grandchildren.

I know that, if we work together as a united people, we will succeed.

Jimmy Carter
